The man who says that, forgets that painting properly done is economy, and the fact is he can't afford NOT to paint.

How often you require to paint is largely dependent upon the paint you use.

However, he may be around to brighten things up for them later.

Grangers Busy

Orchard City Grange met in regular session Tuesday evening with a large attendance, six applications were balloted upon and a class of eight were initiated in the first and second degrees by the drill team. As the conferring of these degrees took most of the time the regular business was largely dispensed with.

Attention was called to the necessity of all to plant a garden and grow their own vegetables and in every way try to make the farms produce a little more during these times of excessive demand.

The issuing of early crop reports during the blossoming period was condemned as being of very little value and often injurious to the producer.

At the next meeting, April 24, the third and fourth degrees will be conferred, followed by a harvest feast.

New School Dedicated

The "house-warming" held at the Grammar school Monday evening was well-attended and much enjoyed.

Mrs. A. H. Osborne, president of the Home and School club, presided and in a few words welcomed the guests and later invited them to a social hour to be spent in visiting the various rooms and in having the points of interest explained.

The audience joined with the school in the salute to the flag and in singing the "Star Spangled Banner," led by the principal, W. B. Kammerer, who followed this exercise with a few words of appreciation for the new building. He also read a circular issued from the county superintendent's office some two years past, stating the conditions for school building, grounds, equipment, the work and discipline in the classrooms, etc., which, when all meet satisfactorily, would entitle the school to a diploma and plate to be placed on the building stating that "This is a Standard School." Mr. Kammerer applied for these recently and Supt. Bateman after careful inspection of all departments has promised to present them at graduation, Campbell being the second school in the county to be so honored.

Miss Georgia Cochran played a pretty piano solo, and graciously responding to an encore.

Mrs. D. W. Waite, in a few pleasing words thanked all who had rendered such material and to the trustees in the preparation of plans and in their execution, and presented the following financial statement, which evinced a capacity for "high finance" on the part of our school board.

Great applause greeted this report. Chas. Berry, retiring from eighteen years' service as a member of the school board talked at some length on his ideals of the function of the school and the duties of a trustee.

C. H. Whitman had been requested to represent the district and voice the appreciation of its voters for the work and time devoted by the trustees, each one receiving a special vote of thanks. In fact, nice things were passed around generally, the only addition to which might have been a special recognition of the part which the Improvement Club took in securing the passage of the bonds.

The most attractive number of the program was a folk drill and song by girls from the intermediate grades, who were dressed all in white with scarves of the same. This is the first number of the kind to be presented by our children and the spectators were very liberal in their praise and complimented Miss Atkinson and Miss Farley on their success.

Supt. D. T. Bateman congratulated Campbell on its new school, explained a few of its desirable features, and then urged greater use of the library, and more home gardening.

The pupils of the 6th, 7th, and 8th grades sang two pretty songs, showing careful training on the part of Mr. Kammerer who directs the music in several grades.

A musical number on the High School Sonora closed the regular program. The entire building was open for inspection and had been artistically decorated throughout. The structure itself is beautiful in all respects and so complete that it elicited words of appreciation and pride on every hand.

TRAPPISTS ONE OF THE MOST ANCIENT ORGANIZATIONS.

Incident of the Present War Has Called General Attention to Their Monastery at Hazebrouck—
Have Spread Over World.

Many American tourists have stopped over night in the Trappist monastery where, according to a report recently published in a Paris newspaper, the youthful Prince Maximilien died of wounds in the third month of the European war. After nearly two years of mysterious silence concerning the fate of this member of the royal family of Germany, it is now said that Hazebrouck is the place of burial of the kaiser's nephew. This town is only a few miles south of the Belgian border, and about eighteen miles from Ypres, where the Germans in their first onward drive toward the sea were definitely checked by a flooding of the lowlands.

When peace is eventually declared a search will doubtless be made in the humble little cemetery of Hazebrouck to recover the body of the royal sub-lieutenant and carry it back to his mother, the youngest sister of the kaiser.

The fighting to the east of Hazebrouck was exceptionally severe during the early months of the war, for this French town of 112,000 inhabitants is a place of extraordinary strategic value, owing to the fact that it is the junction point of railroads leading to the North sea port of Dunkirk, 25 miles to the north; to Arras, 70 miles to the south; to Calais, 33 miles to the northwest, and to Lille, 29 miles to the southeast. The German advance never reached as far as Hazebrouck.

The town of Godewaersvelde, where Prince Maximilien is supposed to have received his fatal wound, is the last village before crossing the French border into Belgium on the Hazebrouck-Ypres line. Above the little town towers the Mont des Cats, on top of which is situated the modern Trappist monastery where the wounded officer was nursed.

The tourists who frequented the monastery in the days before the war were those who wished to take advantage of its hospitable walls for a night's lodging to be able to get an early start for delightful walking excursions over the wooded slopes of Mont Noir and Mont de Lille on the Belgian frontier.

The Trappists are a flourishing order of Cistercian monks who derive their name from the monastery of La Grande Trappe, at Soligny-la-Trappe, 100 miles southwest of Paris, where Armand Jean le B. de Rance instituted sweeping reforms in the middle of the seventeenth century. The expulsion of the order during the French revolution only seemed to stimulate its growth in its city of refuge—Val Sainte, Switzerland. A quarter of a century after their flight the Trappists returned to their original home, and in the course of the century which has intervened between that day and this, the order has spread to many parts of the world, including a congregation of 50 Chinese monks, others in Japan, Asia Minor, Canada and the United States.

In Natal the missionary Trappists are particularly active in trying to civilize and convert the Kaffirs, and among their activities in this part of the world is the printing of books in the Zulu language. There are also Trappist nunneries, the first being that of Les Clairret, at Chartres, which adopted de Rance's reforms during his lifetime.

Coal Dust for Fuel.

Spurred on by prospects of shut-downs during the winter because of the shortage of gas, manufacturers in the Pittsburgh district have been conducting experiments with coal dust, which, they assert, prove that the dust can be substituted for gas. The process is to blow the crushed coal into the open-hearth furnaces by means of compressed air.

This fuel, although not as cheap as natural gas, is being furnished to manufacturing plants of the Pittsburgh district considerably cheaper than consumers' gas.

The Carnegie Steel company, realizing that there will be a shortage of natural gas for manufacturing purposes this winter, has installed coal-dust fuel machinery at 24 of its 64 open-hearth furnaces in the Homestead works and for eight of its 15 open-hearth furnaces at Clairton. By so doing the company will save 15,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas daily at its Homestead works and 6,000,000 cubic feet at its Clairton works, or a total of 21,000,000 cubic feet daily.

The Usual Thing.

"I see where women aided the Russian soldiers to dig trenches."

"That's nothing. Women always did busy themselves about getting men in a hole."

Exercise.

"You manage to do your share of dancing in spite of your fondness for riding."

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins. "It keeps my ankles limbered up for the good work on the motor car."

Kilauea In Eruption

—Courtesy Travelogue Bureau. THE VOLCANO HOUSE

THE city of Honolulu is a charming! Beautiful houses, some of them low bungalows, others more pretentious, and in every style of architecture, surrounded by luxuriant tropical trees and shrubs of every sort, and with smooth green lawns, and gorgeous flower beds—all this close to a sparkling sea, and with picturesque and rugged mountains rising behind—forms a combination of rare attractiveness, says William Dudley Foulke, writing from the Hawaiian city.

The air is soft and laden with a peculiar, delightful sedgy perfume—you lie on the beach and don't want to move or think, but just to dream and watch the rich tropical scene.

I took passage on the "Mauna Kea," one of the little interisland steamers, for Hilo, in the Island of Hawaii, to see Kilauea, the great volcano crater. It is always active, but just now there is a particularly brilliant eruption.

We landed at Hilo, a thriving town of some 8,000 inhabitants, and started in an automobile up through the sugar fields and then through forests and endless groves of fern trees, for some thirty miles to the Volcano House at the edge of the crater. As we rode on some one in our company asked: "Where is the mountain?" for there was no evidence of any in the vicinity. It seemed rather to be one vast plain. But without noticing it we had risen gradually some 4,000 feet—now we began to see steam rising from the bushes and rocks around us, and a smell of sulphur, and then, suddenly emerging from the woods, we found ourselves at the Volcano House on the

The wall of this inside crater is generally 600 feet deep. It was that deep last May. But the lava has been gradually rising since that time till the fiery lake is now less than 100 feet below the rim, and it is rising still, though higher now than it has been for many years. In the middle of this lake is a black, rough, irregular-shaped promontory which looks like an island. The top of it is now about as high as the rim of the crater. But the proprietor of the Volcano House (a Greek who rejoices in the combined glory of the names of Demosthenes and Lycurgus) tells me that a few months ago this island was 500 feet lower than it is today, that it has gradually been pushed up by the molten mass below.

I would not like to be near when it topples over like an iceberg, which it may do soon if the lava keeps on rising. Around this island and against the circular walls of the crater the fiery flood rages and seethes, sweeping generally toward the left (while I was watching it) as it circles within this tremendous cauldron. Now there are no actual flames such as you see when a house burns down or a forest is consumed. It is not like that at all. But if you have stood near the door of a blast furnace and seen the molten metal run out and gradually become black from contact with the air and then more white and red metal follow, you can form a better idea of this molten lake.

Gorgeous Fire Display.

Yet that comparison is inadequate—you would have to multiply the furnace thousands of times and then you would not see half the things going on in edge of the largest active crater in the world, nearly eighty miles in circumference and on an average 600 feet deep, inclosing an area of some 2,650 acres, the floor being made of hardened lava, partly smooth and partly rough, and often wrought into all sorts of grotesque shapes. Steam and sulphur are pouring out from many places.

Crater Within a Crater.

But within this great crater, a little southwest of the middle, there is another one, something over 1,000 feet in diameter, filled with the boiling lava. This is called Halemaunau, "The House of Everlasting Fire." After lunch we drive thither, a ride of seven miles still in our automobile, passing on the way Kilaueaiki and Keonakakoi, two extinct craters (of which there are many hereabouts), splendid natural amphitheatres with smooth, brown lava floors and verdure growing up the sides. When at last we descend to the great crater, cross it and reach the rim of the smaller one within and look over the edges of that a scene is presented which surpasses belief or description. I think nobody can quite form an idea of it who hasn't seen it. With many of the wonders of nature, Niagara, for example, or the Grand Canyon. I have heard people say: "Well, this is great—it is tremendous, but it is not quite as great as I expected." I certainly did not feel like that, in looking for the first time on this terrific sight, a visible and boiling hell right at my feet.

this crater. The lava that floats around is dark with fringes of bright red. Then from the midst of it leaps up a great fountain of bright liquid fire and scatters in all directions, sending its gleaming spray thirty or forty feet high, then another fountain rises, and then a third; then the fountains begin to move, approaching the rim of the crater, and dash against it like waves of the ocean, and you hear a roar like the breakers on a rocky beach; then more red lava boils up, then more, then there is quiet for a few seconds, then all breaks out again. We spent the whole afternoon here at the crater, and then stayed on into the night. It is doubly overwhelming at night, when all you can see is the fiery embroidery of the black floating mass, then the outbreaks, the fountains of fire and the great waves dashing on the circle of rocks around the pit.

We were just on the point of leaving for the hotel and a number of us were walking toward the automobile (which was only a few hundred feet away) when I saw the most spectacular outbreak of all, and called the rest back to enjoy it. The biggest Fourth of July fireworks that man ever saw might be more variegated and artistic, but it couldn't hold a candle to this in the great mass of material involved.

The scene was so fascinating that even the pangs of hunger were forgotten and though we had had nothing to eat since an early lunch, it was hard to break away.

WHY?

If it takes nine tailors to make a man, why should too many cooks spoil the broth?

And if the worst is yet to come, why does every cloud have a silver lining?

Which is best, to count your chickens before they are hatched or look before you leap?

If you should look not upon the wine, how is it that a little wine for the stomach's sake is so frequently urged?

Is travel the greatest educator, or doesn't a rolling stone gather any moss?

If all things come to those who wait, why is it that nothing venture nothing have?

Of course, a patient waiter may be no loser, yet time and tide, it is said, wait for no man.

Everybody knows that a stitch in time saves nine, also that it is never too late to mend.

What goes up must go down—food prices are very much higher. Age is a great improver, yet the good invariably die very young.

To Revive Blankets and Laces.

In the Woman's Home Companion are the following directions for cleaning fine blankets and laces:

"Blankets cleaned in the following way will be as soft as new: Put them in two warm solutions of white soap, using one pound of soap and two ounces of borax to each eight gallons of water. Follow with two warm rinsings and a warm solution of one-half ounce of oxalic acid and one-third pint of acetic acid to 15 gallons of water. If the blankets are colored omit the oxalic acid, otherwise they are cleaned just as white ones. Dry in the open air if possible. To make them look particularly well when they are dry, lay them on a table and brush the nap in one direction on both sides.

"Fine laces should be cleaned in the following way: If of silk use the dry cleaning method, if of cotton baste them on a piece of white cotton cloth and handle them repeatedly in a boiling solution of white soap, using two ounces of soap to each gallon of water. Rinse well, and put them in water to which one teaspoonful of oxalic acid to each gallon of water has been added. To give necessary body, pass them through a solution of one ounce of gum arabic to one quart of water. When nearly dry, pull into shape, lay them on a well-padded board and press them on the wrong side with a cloth over the lace."

Paper Napkin Is Passing.

The American paper napkin is rapidly passing out of existence. The paper manufacturers have threatened to stop making them altogether. During the last year they have steadily increased the price, but the cheaper restaurants have clung tenaciously to the paper napkin idea and gone on demanding them. The laundering connected with the cotton variety was considered too much of a nuisance. Now, however, one by one, each large paper firm has quietly dropped its paper napkin trade. As one firm declared last week: "We have been making 2,000,000 paper napkins a day, and even so cannot keep up with the demand. There is more money in other lines of goods, and we can no longer afford to spare the material."

Developing Alaska.

John Noon of Seward, Alaska, talking in New York the other day, declared that a vast empire is now in the making in Alaska. Gold mining is proceeding on an extended scale, he says, and many men are making fortunes. Coal deposits are being uncovered and agricultural possibilities, especially in Matanuska valley, are being exploited profitably. In this valley last year 2,000 tons of farm products were raised and sold at good prices. In 1916 potatoes brought $47 a ton for home consumption and butter 50 cents a pound. In Tanana district the 1916 production of agricultural articles reached 7,000 tons, all sold locally.

Use for Apple Peels.

Delicious apple jelly can be made from the peelings of apples. Put the peelings into a jar, cover with cold water, and let cook slowly in the oven till the peelings are tender. Then strain, add one pound of sugar for each pint of liquid, and boil till it jellies.

Vexatious.

"I certainly would like to pick up a newspaper that wasn't full of big black headlines," said the fractious man.

"Tired of reading war news?"

"Yes. And to make matters worse, I've reached the point where I believe nearly everything I read."

Galicia in War Time

Galician woman at the plow

BEFORE the war geography and politics combined to make Galicia a province apart from its neighbors. On the south the Carpathians cut off easy access from Hungary; on the north the Russian frontier was much more than a conventional line.

Galicia was part of the old kingdom of Poland, but in the eastern part of the province its population, mainly Ruthenian, was openly antagonistic to the Poles—as the stormy debates in the assembly at Lemberg and the students' rows in the university of the same city often proved. Even in religious matters there was no union, and the provincial capital boasted three rival archbishops as well as a high dignitary of orthodox Jewry. The Jews, indeed, were everywhere, as petty traders, usurers, bankers, and year by year they were becoming more and more the economic masters of the country, writes A. Wyatt Tilby in the London Graphic. The country was poor, but it was made to be wealthy. The soil is good, there is excellent arable and pasture, there are valuable mines in the mountains, and, above all, there are vast oil fields. It was the oil which attracted the only Englishmen or Americans who ever went to Galicia. But there was a heavy annual drain of emigration, and it used to be said in jest that there would soon be more Galicians in Chicago and Winnipeg than in Galicia.

But two years of war hit Galicia hard, and the second year harder than the first. Lemberg, which has changed hands twice, has indeed escaped damage, and Przemyśl—a miserable, second-rate town, in spite of its strategic importance—suffered little during the prolonged siege. Cracow, too, far away to the west, where the great monuments of old Polish history combine to form one of the most interesting, if sent the real wealth of the family, made themselves snug in the rest of the room. The floor was trodden earth, and sanitation was as the snakes of Ireland. The extraordinary thing to an Englishman was that this insufferable atmosphere produced beautiful children, healthy women and sturdy men. I have seen children come out of a hovel whose graceful carriage might be the envy of a woman of fashion, and whose faces were those of angels.

Typhus Is Their Scourge.

According to our notions, they should all die of consumption; but typhus, born in dirt and nourished on under-feeding, is the real scourge of the country. When a case breaks out, the family of the victim go to the church and the whole village comes to pray with them for the patient's recovery; and typhus being one of the most infectious diseases known, it must be a very mild, innocuous type that does not produce an epidemic when these are the only means taken to cure it.

I suspect that much of the heavy mortality among the troops fighting in Galicia has been due to this cause. There have been hints in the Austrian, and more particularly the Hungarian papers, of terrible outbreaks all along this front. The doctors can do little under military conditions; only winter can lessen the scourge—by killing off the victims. But in spring the whole thing will break out again.

Meantime the condition of Galicia must be miserable indeed. The heaviest fighting on the eastern front has been there; the terrific battles of Halicz have almost rivaled Verdun. It is known that the Germans have carried off much of the stock to replenish their own herds. Nearly all the able-bodied men of the country have been called up for military service over two years. Agriculture has been practical-the least visited, of European cities, was threatened for some months, but has so far only heard the echo of the guns. It is the villages and smaller towns that have suffered.

Its Villages Not Beautiful.

Now, a Galician village is not, as a rule, a beautiful object. No artists visit the country to paint its cottages; no authors waste superlatives on its rustic charm. Indeed, the only thing superlative about it is its mud, which is as much a specialized product as a London fog. In the winter, when the snow is hard, one may, if sufficiently foolish and inexperienced, walk down the street without leggings reaching to the knee and still emerge recognizably human; in high summer the mud changes its form but not its evil nature, by turning into dust. But for the rest of the year it is just mud. Even the women wear wellingtons, and tuck their skirts in at the top.

Nor is a Galician interior much more attractive. The house, which is built of clay, is necessarily fashioned to resist the cold, for the winds from the north blow straight down on the province. Even if the window is made to open, it is not opened from October to May. I remember entering one such cottage on an Easter Sunday morning some years ago. The whole winter's accumulation of stale, exhausted air was insupportable after the fresh spring breeze out of doors. A sick child was in the large family bed; a hen with its chickens looked at me suspiciously from the other end of the colored quilt; an inquisitive pig protruded its snout from beneath the bed. The whole family slept in that bed at night, except the husband, who occupied the warm corner by the stove as of right; and the animals, who repre-

ly ruined; communication between east and west is cut off by the line of the opposing armies, which lies flat across the province from Volhynia to the Carpathians; and very many of the villages have been destroyed, as in other parts of Poland. Whatever the political fate of Galicia after the war, the conqueror will have to rebuild its industrial life from the foundation.

Ancient Lead Diggings.

Several Indian lead diggings and evidence of smelting furnaces used by Indians many years ago have been found by Charles E. Brown and Albert O. Barton of Madison while studying the Indian remains in Grant county, according to an article published in the latest number of the quarterly bulletin of the Wisconsin Archaeological society.

Although many evidences of Indian village sites, cemeteries and planting grounds have probably been destroyed, the authors of the article were able to find about 15 village and camp sites, and ten mound groups in Platteville, Harrison, Potot and Paris townships and in the vicinity of Cassville.

Some of the old Indian lead mines were found within the city limits of Platteville. They consist of burrows dug in the base of a hill near the water's edge. An Indian smelting furnace was discovered some time ago in Platteville township at a place known as Tufa Falls. It consists of a hopper-shaped hole, lined with stone grates upon which the lead ore was heaped and covered with burning wood. The melted lead dropped into the hopper.

Profit in High Wages.

Wherever rubber grows, there infidelity flourishes. Tropical fruits are made cheap because human life where they grow is cheap. The spirit of humanity is just beginning to creep into the relations between those who have much and those who have little. But a rare discovery has been made.
Strange as it may seem, it has been proved by experiment that it pays to be reckless of expense when service is sought and rendered. That which has come to pass in the higher ranges of employment, where salaries have been increased tenfold and even more, is happening all along the line where labor and capital meet. Five dollars paid in wages to one competent man brings a larger return than $5 paid to five incompetent men and women; and the larger wage brings the greater fitness for the work. Better wages stir ambition and cause the horizon to expand.—Christian Register.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy be-stomach, liver and bowels is prompt

"One by One."

Little Mollie was seated at the tea table with a plate of cakes opposite her. She was waiting impatiently for the meal to commence, and ventured to touch one of the cakes with her forefinger.

"You must eat that cake now, Mollie!" said her mother, severely. "No-touched it!"

Mollie took the cake and placed it on her plate. A few minutes later she said, plaintively:
"Oh, mummie, I've touched another

AS TO THEORY OF GENIUS

Authorities Have Greatly Differed Concerning What Constitutes Illusory Power of the Mind.

In an article contributed by Dr. A. C.
Jacobson of Brooklyn to the New York Medical Journal there are given what he calls some "possible clues to the nature of genius." His theory, whether true or not, at least does not long beg the whole question in despair, as does the commonly accepted definition of genius as "an infinite capacity for taking pains," and of course it gains plausibility from the fact that it is solidly based on Freudian psychology.

Doctor Jacobson offers as his "clues" the observed similarities between the conditions in which geniuses and the so-called trance mediums manifest; in the latter case the content of an inferior and irresponsible subconscious-ness, and in the former that of one superior in quality and possessing creative power. In both instances, according to him, the phenomena are, or may be, those of dissociation, of a secondary personality, and in neither is there any need to assume, or any excuse for deducing, the concept of a supernatural or suprarational inspiration.

This is a distinctly startling suggestion, but its shock is not permanent, for it is almost common knowledge that there is something trance-like in the abstraction of attention from outside objects and influence that marks the genius as he performs his seeming miracles; and the possibility that a secondary and subconscious ego, but one primary and conscious, is then in action fits in well enough with what William James wrote of reserve powers.

By Doctor Jacobson's theory, then, the genius differs from common mortals chiefly in that he has a special facility for removing, in one way or another, the inhibitions that prevent the emergence and functioning of a sub-consciousness that happens to be of high quality. It will deeply grieve the teetotalers to learn that the doctor gives a long list of great names, some of the dead and some of the living, whose owners owed or owe to alcohol the breaking down of the ordinary inhibitions that prevent the majority of us from being either trance mediums or geniuses. It is a list in part provocative of incredulity, and by no means to be repeated here. Another list presented by him of geniuses whom the toxins of tuberculosis served as illustrator of the creative ego could be more safely rehearsed, but it is enough, perhaps, to second Doctor Jacobson's suggestion that societies for physical research would be better employed in the investigation of genius than in that of their very poor relations, the pretended purveyors of "communications" from the dead.—New York Times.

Spending Ninety Years.

Justice Louis D. Gibbs of the criminal branch of the Bronx supreme court, who is feared by all offenders because of the heavy sentences that he imposes, tells a story of a recent occurrence which has caused considerable amusement in the northern borough.

A detective who was taking a burglar to court was asked by his prisoner as to the name of the judge before whom he would be arraigned.

"You will go before Justice Gibbs," replied the detective.

"Then it's all over over with me," remarked the burglar. "Gibbs goes to court every morning with about ninety years in his pocket, and he don't care how he spends them."—New York

Every druggist in town—your druggist calomel. They all give the same reason.

Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.
"Calomel is dangerous and people fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience like

SUCCESS OF A NEW REMEDY FOR BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM, KIDNEYS.

Folks here in town and in adjoining counties are delighted with the results they have obtained by using "AN-URIC," the newest discovery of Dr. Pierce, who is head of the INVALID, HOTEL, AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE, in Buffalo, N. Y.
Those who started the day with a backache, stiff legs, arms and muscles, and an aching head (worn out before the day began because they were in and out of bed half a dozen times at night) are appreciating the perfect rest, comfort and new strength they obtained from Doctor Pierce's An-uric Tablets. To prove that this is a certain uric acid solvent and conquerer of headache, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism, if you've never used the "An-uric," cut this out and send 2c to Doctor Pierce for a large sample package. This will prove to you that "An-uric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid—and the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector. If you are a sufferer, go to your best druggist and ask for a 50-cent box of "An-uric."

or bowels; how much your head aches,

Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.

CUSTOMS IN WEST INDIES

Theodore Roosevelt Writes Entertainingly of Life "Where the Steady Trade-Winds Blow."

When the ship was coaled the workers were sometimes men, sometimes strapping women as strong as the men, who chattered and sang as they toiled, while their white teeth flashed in their dark faces. Queer fishing craft, sometimes with russet sails, danced over the foaming combers which broke the azure of the deep. Rows of tall, slender-stemmed palms stood back of the shining beaches, their fronded tops thrashing endlessly in the trade-wind.
On the edge of the blue ocean, at the foot of brilliant green mountains, half hidden in the tropic vegetation, stood little towns, clusters of low white or red houses. After nightfall the town galleons sat at small tables on the sidewalks outside the taverns or under the trees in the open squares. Powerful, finely built black women and little, comely brown women strode along the paths and highroads, erect and supple, all their burdens, great or small, poised on their heads. Sometimes these burdens were extraordinary because of their bulk or weight, at other times they were comic because it seemed incredible that such small or peculiar objects should not be carried in the hand; once, for instance, we saw a woman carrying on her head a solitary white shoe, and another time, of all things, a single egg.

In all the islands legal and political discriminations based on color have been done away. In some the social discriminations are giving way. In others sharp social lines are drawn not only between white and colored—as all shades of cross-blood are called —but between colored and black. The whites everywhere composed most of the upper class, although it also included many of the colored; the colored folk made up most of the middle class, and just as they extended into the class above them so their class was entered by the blacks below them; and the bulk of the laborers, in the towns and especially in the country, were blacks, although many were brown.—From "Where the Steady Trade-Winds Blow," by Theodore Roosevelt, in the February Scribner.

BRAZIL CORN EXPOSITION.

The first national exposition of corn in Brazil was held recently in Sao Paulo. It was modeled on those which have met with such success in the United States. It was held under the patronage of the state minister of ag-by prominent planters from many states, who took advantage of the occasion to supply themselves with high-grade seed for the coming crops. It is the intention of the organizers to form

"corn clubs" throughout the country, to be conducted in the same manner as in the United States.

England's Mysterious Ditches.

The discovery of a "covered way," across Willington hill, near Eastbourne, has recently been made by H. S. Toms of Brighton. A "covered way" consists of a ditch with a bank on either side which runs across exposed brows of the downs, generally connecting the head of one valley with that on the other side of the hill.

It is thought that these "ways" were used in ancient times to enable persons to cross over the downland ridges without being seen. They were formerly taken to be defensive lines, but against this theory is the fact that the ditch is banked on both sides. It has been proved that the "covered ways" of the South Downs are decidedly older than the Roman occupation.—London Times.

Such ! ! ! ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened cal-

corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women

How Efficiency Works.

The manager of a large eastern factory has been quoted as saying:
"The benefits from scientific management derived by our employees in the making of paper and paper boxes—and we have been working under it only two and one-half years—are: Average increase in wages, 15 per cent; reduction in working hours, 10 per cent; a feeling of greater confidence in that the tasks set by means of a scientific study of the work are known by the employee to be accurate."

"A recent test on machines producing 85 per cent of our boxes shows the difference between the time allowed for two thousand hours of work and the time actually taken was less than three-fourths of an hour."

"It has been said by opponents that individuality is lessened or taken away.
Our experience has been exactly the reverse."

Aluminum in Dutch Guiana.

In the past there has been considerable excitement in Dutch Guiana, due to the discovery of large deposits of bauxite on the Surinam river, some four hours journey from Paramaribo.
It is from this clay-like aluminum fer-ric hydroxide that aluminum is made, and the discovery of the rich fields of clay has stirred up many prospectors.

One company has taken possession of the hill deposits, but engineers hold that the clay is probably located at various depths. It can be easily transported, as several broad, navigable rivers run near this district, which will probably be developed rapidly.
The government is very careful in issuing authorizations to prospect, and these rights are reserved for Nether-landers, Surinamers or companies established in the Netherlands or in Surinam.

SCOTS AS FIGHTERS.

They Won Fame In Former Days Under Many Different Flags.
It would be difficult to find an army in Europe which did not contain descendants of the Scottish soldier of fortune. In Sweden Gustavus Adolphus had four lieutenant generals, twenty-two colonels and many other inferior officers, all Scotsmen, in his service. He owned that his conquests in Germany were due to the valor of these gallant soldiers.
In Muscovy the Brucers, the Gordons and the Douglasses were famous.
Even in Germany the ubiquitous Scot was to be found, and a General Ogilvy, whose grandfather was a Scotsman, was at one time field marshal of the empire.
It was in France, however, that the Scot was rated most highly, and the old saying ran, "Fidèle comme un Ecossais." Louis had such a respect for these soldiers that he ordained that his body should be guarded night and day by twenty-four Scotsmen. This Scots bodyguard was continued under the reign of nine kings without intermission for 150 years.
King Charles VII. raised another company of Scots, called "Gens d'Arms d'Ecosse," consisting of 100 horses and 200 archers. This force had precedence of all the French troops.—London Chronicle.

A Real Puzzle.
Ezra Haskins, constable of a New England village, had an exalted opinion of his ability as a detective. He also read everything he could find on the career of Sherlock Holmes, until he imagined that he had thereby acquired wonderful deductive abilities. "Now, gentlemen," said he, on one occasion to his assistants in a particular case, "we have traced these clues—the footprints of the horse and the footprints of the man, right up here to this stump, from the stump on there's only the footprints of the horse. Now, gentlemen, the question arises: What has become of the man?"

How It Is Done.
"Dear Sir—Will you kindly publish directions for tying a bow tie? Roger Coot."
Well, Roger, you hold the tie in your left hand and your collar in the other. Slip your neck in the collar and cross the left hand end of the tie over the right with the left hand, steady the right end with the other hand. Then drop both hands, catching the left with the right and the other with the other. Reverse hands and pick up the loose end with the nearest hand. Pull this end through the loop with your unengaged hand and squeeze. You will find the knot all tied, and all you have to do is to tangle your hands.—Dartmouth Jack-o'-Lantern.

Easter Observed

Easter Sunday was observed most fittingly by both Campbell churches which were beautifully decorated for the occasion.

At the Sunday-school hour the Congregational Sunday-school had a special Easter service prepared by the Church Building Society, including songs, recitations and readings by the children, all of which passed off very nicely and were enjoyed by young and old alike.

At the morning service a double male quartet under the direction of Prof. Jan Kalas, accompanied by Miss Kalas, rendered a beautiful Hallelujah chorus, singing at both churches. The choir had also prepared special music which was very pleasing. Dr. White preached a most able sermon at the M. E. church and the pastor of the Congregation gave a deeply spiritual address on the Easter theme.

In the evening the Methodist congregation were guests of the other church at a service of story and song, entitled, "Love Triumphant," "The Story of Tor," "A Beggar Boy of Jerusalem," interpolated with songs.

The story is an account of the first Easter with the days immediately preceding. Several of the selections were sung by the choir, with a solo by Evelyn Henry, and a duet by Miss Duncan and H. C. Smith.

Miss Lucille Ellison played a very pretty violin solo at the opening and Mr. Robert Scholz accompanied the chorus numbers with the violin, their music adding much to the effect of the service.

Adler-Sturtevant

Word has been received telling of the marriage of Wilbur Daniel Sturtevant and Ada Alder of Campbell. They were married by their friend, the Rev. G. E. Atkinson, at the Congregational parsonage at Martinez Tuesday. After the ceremony Mrs. Atkinson served light refreshments to start the happy couple aright.

They will take apartments in San Francisco for a month or so then go to Mr. Sturtevant's favorite fishing ground, Lake Tahoe for two months, returning to Campbell in the late summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Sturtevant are both well known in Campbell and the best wishes of their many friends go with them on life's journey.

Dr. Wise Spoke at Campbell

Dr. Sarah Wise was in Campbell Monday and spoke to both the High school and Grammar school students on matters pertaining to their physical and moral welfare.

Dr. Wise has practiced for twenty-two years in San Francisco and has given up a lucrative practice to travel on a salary and deliver lectures and talks to children and adults on these most important subjects.

In the afternoon she talked to women at a meeting at Mrs. Whitman's. All those present were greatly impressed with the importance of the matter presented, and the beautiful way in which it was done.

Much Cheaper Toothless.
With a view to advertising his business a dentist in an English town announced that he would supply artificial teeth to the first twelve aged ladies in poor circumstances who applied for them.

The earliest application on the appointed day was an elderly woman in shabby but respectable clothes.
Scarcely was she seated when a red faced old man came to the place and announced that he had come "about them teeth."

"You are making a mistake," the dentist replied. "I only made my offer to ladies. In fact, there's one lady waiting now."

"An' it's about 'er I've come," reported the old man gruffly. "Tell 'er 'er husband's waitin' for 'er and if she don't put 'er out quick there'll be trouble. She's got a happy little like an 'oss already, and if you set 'er up w' a strong lot of 'er teeth she'll out both me an' 'er into the workus in a week. Send 'er out at once!"

Rise Above Them.
Then welcome each rebuff
That turns earth's smoothness rough,
Each sting that bids not sit nor stand,
but go!

Be our joy three parts pain!
Strive and hold cheap the strain;
Learn, nor account the pang; dare, never grudge the throe.

Heart Cry to Mothers

Oh, you with a babe at your breast,
Oh, you with a child at your knee,
Pray well, for on you there rests
The weight of a world's destiny!

The prattling child at your knee
Mother arms can not always enfold,
Each must walk his pathway alone
But the prayers of mothers may hold.

This innocent child of today
Will be the man of to-morrow;
Will he bring to the gray old world
A measure of joy or of sorrow?

When your journey is almost o'er,
And you're bowed with the weight of years,
Will the crop you reap be one of smiles,
Or will it be a harvest of tears?

Oh, we may not see the path
That these little feet must trod,
But we will do our prayerful best
And trust the rest to God.

CLARA BEEBE BALDWIN, Campbell, California.
(The above poem, which was recited by Mrs. Rogers, was announced last week.)

Methodist Church Notes

S. S. at 9:45 a. m., and E. L. at 6:45 p. m.
Prof. Snow will lead the E. L. meeting Sunday evening at 6:30.

The sermon Sunday morning will be in the nature of an anniversary address preliminary to the annual roll call. The pastor will preface the sermon with a few remarks on the subject of enlistment of our young men and their parents.

The choir of our church at Los Gatos will be with us Sunday evening to repeat for our benefit their Easter music. This means that we will have a chorus choir of between 25 and 30 voices providing a program of sacred music covering an hour, in addition to the usual opening exercises and a ten minute talk by the pastor. We look confidently for a crowded church.

Quite a number of the ladies of the W. F. M. S. are planning to attend the luncheon at First church, San Jose, Tuesday. They may bring home the ten dollar prize for the auxiliary having the largest percentage of membership present.

The annual Roll Call to be held Friday evening of next week gives promise of being the largest in attendance and the most enthusiastic for several years.

The man who stops his little ad,
Is not so very wise, bedad!
Because his advertisements tell
The public what he has to sell;
And if his ad is not on deck
The people pass him up, by heck!
And none of them will hesitate
To trade with people up to date.
To stop your ad, we should remark,
Is just like winking in the dark;
You may know what it means, but gee!
Nobody else can ever see.
So do not for a moment think That when you cut out printer's ink You're saving money on the side,—
'Tis merely business suicide.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.
